THAT American visitor who expected to find Shakespeare's tomb in Victoria may not have been so far off the scent, after all.

We do have Shakespeare's house in Victoria. It isn't the identical house that the bard used to live original and it's just as good. Who knows? Maybe

It is owned by that noted curator of antiques and man-about-tourist-business, Squadron Leader Sam Lane of the Olde England Inn, Lampson Street.

"What the visitor was seeking, no doubt, was 'Shakespeare's House' on Hither Green Place, Esquimalt," the landlord of the Olde England informs

"This is my house, built last year by Victor Leigh. . . . The exterior is a replica of Shakespeare's birthplace in Stratford-on-Avon.

"This place was recently featured with an excellent article on Victoria in "The Great Northern Goat" magazine, which is the monthly periodical put out by the Great Northern Railway, Seattle, a medium of excellent publicity for Victoria, covering every passenger agent and travel service in the U.S.A.

"Last October, a half-page write-up in the Christian Science Monitor also covered the Shakespeare House. The National Geographic Magazine, eight magazines covered by the Hearst group and photos taken by thousands of visitors to Victoria are all producing valuable publicity which helps to bring more visitors and thus more work for . . . local people. "The Shakespeare House is on the yellow line

Don't neglect to follow that yellow line, you visitors. The line isn't a replica of anything, but it leads you to some interesting places,

Thanks to the genial host of the Olde England, Shakespeare has broken into the pages of the Great Northern Goat magazine, which isn't a bad market for a scribe who has been dead some 350 years.

In the controversy between comedian Red Skelton and a rowdy section of the British press, it is hard to say which party displays the worst taste. Skelton's little boy is dying of leukemia, and he was taking the lad around the world so he could have as much fun as possible in the time left to him. Even if he had tried to keep this fact a close secret, and there had been a tiny leak, news reporters would have pursued it with all their strength until they got a story. But Skelton did not try to hush it up. He cooperated with the press, told them the story in the graphic and lively detail that would come naturally to him, since he is an entertainer and he can't help being one in spite of himself, even at the most solemn moments. When he reached Britain, some newspapers laid on the story thick and syrupy. Others, not to be outdone, acidly accused the comedian of exploiting the boy's illness for publicity.

It was a contemptible thing to say. Skelton's restraint, or say nothing. Instead, he is burbling about getting revenge and lampooning the British press on television. A heart-breaking story about a little boy near death has crumbled into bathos. Skelton and one or two of the hooligan newspapers must share the blame.

But the little boy is still dying of leukemia. The best thing all parties can do now is shut up.

Filling In Portfolios

PRIME MINISTER JOHN DIEFEN-BAKER filled one major and one lesser portfolio in the federal cabinet this week with the unhurried air of a leader who is making his own selections on a durable basis. Both ministers so honored are in their prime. Mr. Douglas Harkness, who shortly will drop the resources portfolio he began with to devote his attention to the department of agriculture, is 54 years of age. The third new cabinet minister from Quebec, M. Paul E. Comtois, who becomes minister of mines and technical surveys, is 61. Eight parliamentary assistants were appointed at the same time, and Mr. Diefenbaker named the Progressive Conservatives' chief whip, Mr. Louis E. Tardiff.

There is no question that Mr. Harkness is going to one of the most exacting departments in the government service, that of agriculture. The farmers of Canada have not altogether prospered in an industrial economy. The agricultural policies followed by the former Liberal regime under Mr. James Gardiner were not successful in achieving their object but left a good deal of plain recovery to be attempted by his successor. It will be taken for granted that Mr. Harkness will not repeat Mr. Gardiner's wild experiments, which cost federal taxpayers mil-equivalent gain to the nation's farm life. Canada's huge carry-over in export grains, the upset state of world markets, shortened overseas buying and many other factors have to be weighed in one of the most complex problems facing this

The prime minister has indicated that for the present he will retain the portfolio of external affairs, but that the immigration portfolio will be filled on a permanent basis before the Commons meets this fall. Immigration policy obviously is due for a major overhaul, and the Conservatives have shown from the start that they realize the portfolio is an important one in Canada's present state of development. Mr. Diefenbaker's interest in Commonwealth trade and his desire to bring about a roundtable conference on that subject at an early date are a token that Canada's external relations will not be overlooked in the

The choice of eight parliamentary assistants, one each to the several ministries concerned, was anticipated and customary following a change of government, Here too, however, the Progressive Conservative administration has taken time to make unhurried selections from among young and able personnel.

The Liberal Dilemma

MEETING of importance for the A federal Liberal party is due next week when Mr. St. Laurent meets his chief henchmen to plan for the future. The unaccustomed role of opposition at the next session of Parliament is one new departure to be studied, as well as the prospects of the party in another election. If it is to restore its fortunes, now confined in the main to Quebec, the Liberal party needs to acquire a new look, since its status as a national grouping has suffered severe diminution.

Chief among the elements inherent in the party's future of course is the position of Mr. St. Laurent himself. It is no secret that the decisive upset of June 10 has caused many Liberals to feel that a new leader is essential if the party is to regain its previous dominance. Against this there is on record the immediate post-election statement of the former that he wanted to lead the Liberals in opposition and in another test at the polls. If sustained, therefore, this preference will not be easy to set aside. Mr. St. Laurent is still the person whose political will prevails; he can scarcely be demoted against his wish.

Had the Liberals been returned to power the likelihood is that Mr. St. Laurent would have retired gracefully from the scene at an early date. This would have suited his known personal desire to spend his remaining years in peaceful privacy, and flushed with victory he could have made way for a successor with an easy mind. It is natural, however, that he would not want a retirement forced by defeat; excusable vanity alone would prompt an attempt to retrieve his position notwithstanding the odds his years combine against him.

This is the dilemma that faces the Liberals as they meet the challenge of reorganization. That party has been loyal to its leaders and it is unlikely to force the ouster of Mr. St. Laurent if he is bent on remaining as leader. On the other hand the party's prospects for the future probably would be enhanced under a new and more youthful leader, such as Mr. Lester Pearson for instance, a transition that would have to come soon in any

New Housing for the Blind

WITH the generous co-operation of the British Columbia government Victoria is soon to be the site of the first low-rental housing scheme in North America specially designed for blind people. Though on a modest scale to begin with, it is a splendid project and one which is bound to have the fullest public support. Announcement of the plan this week marked the culmination of negotiations between the Canadian National Institute for the Blind and the provincial government, during which Premier Bennett's helpfulness cleared the way for construction to start this fall. His co-operative attitude throughout has been gratefully acknowledged by Capt. M. C. Robinson, western regional director of the institute.

Financial arrangements agreed upon bring the Province, the city and to a small extent the Dominion into the picture. The

B.C. government will put up one-third of the cost; 15 per cent will be furnished by the CNIB from its Community Chest grant, representing contributions by the people of Victoria; and the balance will be raised by means of loans from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation. There will, then, be no special appeal to the public for funds, though if there were one it is certain that contributions would be made gladly to such a heart-warming

Descriptions of the architectural layout, equipment and furnishings proposed for the pilot units indicate that their blind occupants will be comfortably housed and enabled to take care of themselves. The assurance also that rents to be established will be well within the means even of those dependent on blind pensions will do much to relieve the distress of those who have little or nothing else to live on.

Weather Cycle Affects Russia

By DONALD J. GONZALES United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP) - Drought and other unfavorable weather conditions may make deep cuts in Russia's farm crops this year, experts said today. If rains don't come to wide areas of the Soviet Union the farm situation could mean considerable trouble for party boss Nikita Khrushchev. He has been bragging about rising Soviet farm output and predicted big things in Soviet agriculture for this year, Experts have seen trouble signs for Soviet agriculture cropping up in the Soviet press in recent weeks. The Russians have been complaining about poor planning to provide combines and other farm machinery for duty in grain fields.

U.S. experts on Soviet agricultural problems are watching and studying a variety of reports that crops also are being hurt by drought and heat waves.

There seems to be a shortage of rainfall in important farm areas of the northern Caucasus, southern Ukraine, Volga area and in Kazakhstan. On June 2 Khrushchev told an. American radio-TV audience Russia had a "very good barvest last year, particularly in Siberia and Kazakhstan where new lands were put into wheat in recent years.

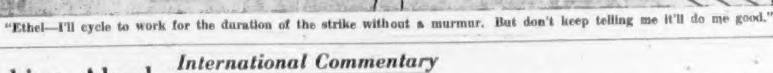

"This year, for the time being, the prospects seem to be even better than last year," Khruabeliev said. "That is true especially of the Ukraine, the central part of Russia and the prospects are very good for Siberia and Ha-

Khrushchev's hopes and predictions may have gone sour. Officials said indications are crop conditions are not as good as Khrushchev believed they would be when he spoke two months ago. They said drought problems could upset Khrushchev's expressed hope that his country can catch up with milk and butter production next year.

There are some unofficial estimates that the 1957 Soviet harvest of wheat, oats, barley and other small grains will be at least one million tons below last year's good crops. There is no official estimate of the crops, however, pending additional word on the weather and the completion of the harvest. Production of hay and other fodder crops is expected to drop this year.

A poor year on Soviet collective farms could hurt Khrushchev politically. For years he has been overlord of Soviet agriculture. There were widespread reports that differences over agricultural policies was brought up prior to the recent Kremlin shakeup. An agriculture setback now would give Khrushchev's opponents powerful new arguments against him.

Drought and generally poor crop conditions would only add to Russia's already difficult farm problem. Under the collectivized farm program peasants have shown little interest in seeing the fruit of their labors go to the state at prices below those on the free market. General inefficiencies in machinery production and use, marketing and farm management have plagued the Soviet system for 40 years.

Since then, the Soviet leaders have gone farther. They now insist, as stated again in Mr. Bulganin's letter to Mr. Macmillan on July 20, that the "unification of Germany is the affair of the two German governments that are now in existence and it is up to them to conduct talks on the question between

* * * This thesis is not only a complete departure from the principles, laid down in the Geneva Declaration; it is one which Moscow knows quite well to be an impossible one. For one thing, no party in West Germanyneither the government nor the opposition - is prepared to "conduct talks" with the present regime in East Germany, which is maintained in power by Russian tanks. They regard it, rightly, as in no way en-

Soviet zone. Moreover, the East German Communist leaders have made it very clear that their conditions for negotiations are such that no West Gertitled to speak for the people of the TUST two years ago, at the end of man government could conceivably accept them. Herr Ulbricht laid down these conditions at a meeting of the East German Communist Party's central committee in February.

His conditions for even discussing reunification are, first, a withdrawal of the federal republic from NATO and the establishment of a "Europeansecurity system" to which both parts of Germany belong. Secondly, drastic changes in West Germany-including the nationalization of basic industries and the purge of "capitalist reactionaries." These, be it noted, are the prior conditions for any discussion. They do not appear to be affected by Herr Grotewohl's recent suggestion that the first step to unity might be "confederation."

Here, then, is the current position. The Soviet government repudiates free elections and insists on negotiations between Bonn and Pankow. Its German proteges lay down impossible conditions for such negotiations.

Can anything be done to remove these obstacles, to reconcile the idea of a Germany united in freedom by free elections?

One frequent suggestion is that the Soviet objections would be met if it were a condition for reunification that a united Germany must be "neutral" and bound not to make any alliances of any kind. There is, on available evidence, no reason to believe that this would suffice. In any case, it is an impracticable proposal. It would be a denial of the sovereignty which West Germany in fact, and East Germany in theory, have now. And "history teaches us" that such denials of sovereignty are impossible to enforce.

* * The new Berlin declaration lays down, the only possible principle. It is that a free, sovereign and united Germany must be "free to determine its foreign policy and to decide on its International associations."

It would be free, if it chose, to declare itself neutral - as Switzerland and Austria have done. It would be free, if it chose, to join NATO. It would be free, if it chose, to join the Warsaw Pact. The point is that it must be free. Nothing else is possible.

Within this limit is there anything that can be done to remove any genuine apprehensions which the Soviet Government may feel at the prospect of a united Germany choosing membership of NATO?

by Giles

The new declaration repeats the offer made by Mr. Macmillan (then foreign secretary), on behalf of the Western powers, in Geneva in October, 1955. If a reunited Germany were to join NATO, the Western powers would make with Russia a treaty of assurance, guaranteeing joint "appropriate action" by all parties against any breaker of the European peace. NATO countries are already pledged not to give any aid to any member of an organization guilty of a breach of peace.

That offer is repeated. In addition, there is as assurance that in the event of a united Germany joining NATO they "would not take military advantage as a result of the withdrawal of the Soviet forces." Dr. Adenauer has said that, for example, he would agree that the whole of present East Germany should become a completely demilitarized zone.

Finally, the three Western powers and the federal republic declare their readiness to "discuss all these questions with the Soviet Union at any time that there is a reasonable propect of making progress." It is an offer which calls for a reply from

"But," I protested, "all these will be in full glory after you're gone for the summer. When do you leave?"

"First week of September," he said. "We'll all be gone, then," I pointed out. "There will be hardly a soul around here to see them."

"What difference does that make?" enquired the old man, artfully,

Their purpose is to make sure that there is never an instant of time in which God is not being worshipped. people compete in the oil business

Did you know there are more than 10,000 people engaged in the search for oil in Canada? We know it, because we run into plenty of them each time we try to lease promising oil lands.

Did you know there are hundreds of skilled chemists and engineers in Canada's 42 refineries? We know it, because our own technical people have to work hard to stay ahead of the others in producing better products at lower cost.

Did you know Canada's oil companies employ thousands of salesmen to market their products? We know it, because every day our own sales people are competing with salesmen from other companies.

Canada's hundreds of oil companies wage vigorous competition. The result is increased efficiency, and benefits to the consumer.

STURGEON BAY, Wisc .- For a good while now, the machine age has held us all in its oiled and steely clutch, and lately it has extended its dominion to include fish. For example, anglers who sail out of Bay Shore Inn here aboard Duke Hanson's cruiser, Duchess, no longer depend on guess work to locate the smallmouth bass which congregate along these rocky shores. They have electronics going for them.

Duke has a depth-finder that bounces electrical impulses against the floor of the bay and records on the instrument panel to find the reefs and discern with absolute certainty just where the shoals shelve off into the depths. It is here that bass love to loaf through the day wrangling about the National League race and sneering at the lures which fishermen drag through the water, the bugs they skitter across the surface and the nightcrawlers, hellgramites, minnows, crawfish and similar delicatessen which they dangle on hooks near the bottom?

In a filling station on the principal corner of town is a worm machine that operates twenty four a day. It has been there all summer but was only recently discovered by a lady driving by, and she returned from her shopping in an enchanted haze.

It was, she reported, one of those coin-operated gismos dispensing fish bait. She hadn't stopped to see how it worked, preferring to speculate about it. Probably you put a coin in the slot, she said, causing a bell to ring, and at this signal a dozen nightcrawlers come wriggling out one by one.

Comforts of Home

On investigation this turned out to be fanciful. Seems that a man down in the village of Forestville developed some modifications on the standard vending machines and has placed a number in strategic locations hereabouts. He raises his own nightcrawlers, packages them with moss and feed and stocks the machines, which are refrigerated to keep the worms fresh and

A half-dollar releases a package of a dozen and a half. The Worm Lady of Seventh Avenue, who has beautiful worms that she sells in old coffee cans, charges only thirty cents a dozen. However, she requires some sleep and the machine doesn't.

The advantage is obvious. Used to be that the eager fisherman had to wait perhaps as late as 8 a.m. for the bait stores to open but now he can get worms from the machine at any hour, go fishing, and he frustrated and miserable around the clock. Right down toward the bridge from the worm machine is an ice cube machine, so in Sturgeon Bay the necessities of life are always available.

August Will Be Wonderful

Indeed, the only ingredient of a happy vacation which July dien't offer was hig bass. In spite of the Milwaukee papers' glowing reports on Door County's famous waters, results of a month's effort were far below normal. Oh, there was one good day with the pale truculent bass of Kangaroo Lake and there were a couple of expeditions with Duke Hanson to a reef out of Sand Bay where jumbo perch abounded.

Another day at Monument Shoal, there was an hour or so when the black bass, perch and rock bass hit enthusiastically, but they were mostly on the small side. It was easy to pick up small ones almost any time and they provided good fun on flies and poppers, but a guy is always looking for lunkers and they didn't show. The biggest bass seen measured ninteeen inches and Nacalmo Vancouver weighed three and a half pounds, which is good but not remarkable. He was taken on opening day, July 1.

The "Green Bay Press-Gazette" carried a photograph of a lady with a largemouth weighing six and three-quarter pounds that she got fishing a nighterawler from the Causeway across Kangaroo Lake. There's so little water along the Causeway _Chances of a Western Canada Victory for the Timbermen the half, but from then on was The Dodgers are now five that you seldom see anglers working there. All Shuker turned in an out-ened by the Reds and Philadelsides of the bridge, all soaking bait for six pound largemouths.

"And I hear they finally got a seven pounder," a man in the Nanaima bank told a vacationer cashing a cheque for getaway money.

Even the commercial Hanermen were co these poats has an enjoyable early morning ritual. Star Performer of Shell's great new motor fuel team

uner with TCP

Sparks all the live performance in the most modern cars on the road

- Today's engines have the highest horsepower, the highest compression ratios in history. And the trend is toward still further increases.

Anticipating the need for an improved motor fuel, Shell Oil Company of Canada, Limited introduces Super Shell with TCP*. Super Shell is an all-new higher grade of gasoline-developed to meet the full octane needs of today's most advanced cars.

At the same time, Super Shell delivers better performance than ever in all cars now using premium gasoline. That's because Super Shell supplies all the octane value your engine needs under every driving

This great combustion energy gives you as added bonus, too. When you're cruising, Super Shell's reserve energy converts automatically to extra miles in every tankful.

And with TCP in Super Shell, these benefits are always yours. TCP eliminates the effect of engine deposits that can rob even the newest cars of performance and economy.

For a new experience in motoring, drive up to your Shell Dealer's new white pump and fill up with Super Shell today.

"Shell's Trademark for this unique gasoline additive developed by Shell Resserab. Patented 1965

Higher octane in new Shell

Not every car needs Super Shell. If you've been using a regular gaseline, try new higher octane Shell with TCP. It will give your car better per-formance and economy than you ever thought it could deliver.

Madrigal Singers

Delight Audience

The composition and singing of madrigals was at its popular height in the 16th and 17th centuries. If the people of those days enjoyed hearing and singing them as much as the audience and performers at Victoria College auditorium Wednesday night they must have had some wonderful times.

The performers were the University of Washington Madrigal singers and the occasion was the next to last in the concert series presented by the College

The program was of very high standard. There were items of strongly contrapunta form and, again, others delight ful for their simplicity.

Three items by Betty Matthais revealed a soprano voice at once powerful but confidently controlled, "Wher'er You Walk" (Handel) and the Norwegian Echo Song, "Kom Kjyra" were particularly fine.

Director of the singers was Gerald Kechley and the group comprised Janet Heller, Betty Matthias, Judith Morris, Audrey JOAN BARBARA CATHERING KEN-NELLY, deceased, formerly of the City of Victoria, B.C. Morton, Geraldine Nein, Donna Paul, Dave Sannerud, James nortice is hereby given that Creditors

Garden Notes

Spare Speeders

In one of my earlier columns I mentioned the fact that the ladybird is a triendly insect which feeds upon aphis and their eggs. This bug and its tiny, dragon-like offspring are powerful factors in keeping the greently

I had a very nice letter last week from one of my readers recalling this bit about the ladybird, and asking how one can tell the friendly insects from the garden pests.

This sis a difficult question to answer. Bug lore is a highly specialized branch of natural science, and life is too short for amateur gardeners like us to get to recognize and name every insect in the garden, and to know all about their life cycles and feeding

Fortunately, though, there is a rough rule of thumb which may be applied: any bug which moves quickly and scurries around fast is usually carnivorous-a meat eater, living off other, slower moving creatures.

this rule, of course—the leaf hopper, for instance, is a most destructive pest, yet his jump is too sudden and fast to follow with the eye-but by and large the rule works out.

Lots of people write to me asking and I give them the names of some effective ant poisons. But a few weeks ago, I watched a column of big red ants struggling across the garden soil and each was bearing in his jaws one of those little green leaf-eating worms, as big or bigger than the ant that carried it. I am not at all sure, now, that ants SHOULD be destroyed, unless, of course, they invade your house and go after the tam and syrup in the pantry

One awkward situation with insecticidal sprays is that they kill off friend and foe alike, and sometimes the consequences of losing our insect alles are quite serious. The loss of bees during the blossom period can be disastrous to both the fruit grower and beakeeper, and the infestations of red spider miles nearly always becomes worse after dusting or spraying with DDT, because this chemical kills off the bugs which prey upon the red spider mite without harming the mite

I am not a purist or a fanatic against the use of poison aprays, but I do think that, in the home garden anyway, they should be used with some discrimination and applied only when an infestation shows signs of becoming serious. Otherwise you risk upsetting the balance of nature, and the end result may be worse than the original

In a small garden, it is surprising how much control can be effected samply by picking off and burning intested leaves and shoots. On one occaalon I cleaned up a rose bush virtually crawling with greenfly by pulling on an old wootlen sock over my hand and stroking the intested shoots until all the aphis were entangled in the coarse wool. Three goes, spaced three days apart, left the bush as clean as a

Talking Politics

By Peter Bruton

B.C. Tories' Hopes High

Provincial Progressive Conservatives, buoyed up by the amazing Tory victory in the federal field last June, feel they are about to inch their way from the political wilderness they have occupied for the past few years.

The first full-scale test will come Sept. 9 when three byelections -- in Burnaby, Delta and the Cariboo - will be held to fill vacancles in the provincial legislature. STRONG BID

The Conservatives are going to make a strong bid to win at least one of the seats and thereby gain representation in the legislature for the first time since former Nanaimo MLA Larry Giovando quit the party to become an independent after the Conservative civil war in 1954.

If the Conservatives are going to make any headway in the next provincial election in 1959 or 1960 they desperately need a small vociferous voice to speak for the party in the legislature. The opportunity to obtain just this oice lies in the byelections. LOTS OF TROUBLE

There are, however, plenty of internal party troubles which could wreck the drive for representation even before the candidates throw themselves on the mercy of the voters. Take, for instance, the situation surrounding provincial party leader Deane Finlayson.

Mr. Finlayson, who led the B.C. Conservative revolt against national leader George Drew three years ago. has failed in every bid to win a scat in the legislature. His record is a dismal failure, to say the least.

CHANGES MIND Apparently undismayed by this, the provincial leader let it be known recently that he would dearly like to be given the Conservative comination in Burnaby, a traditional CCF stronghold. This caused such a furore in party ranks that Mr. Finlayson fater indicated he didn't want to run, after

There will probably be denials about this but the fact is that a strong move is afoot place Mr. Finlayson with another leader who does not hold such an unenviable record of defeats at the polls. All of which may lead to a sensational party convention at a later date.

The Conservatives point out that Mr. Finlayson is so desperate to regain public confidence that he is embarrassing the party. GETS IN PICTURE

When Transport Minister George Hees arrived here this week on an inspection trip for his department, Mr. Finlayson took it upon himself to fly here from Vancouver to join up with the party. This tended to make Mr. Hees' visit one of political significance rather than the familiarization trip, which it was, And Mr. Finlayson didn't make it any better by pushing himself forward into photographs with the minister and Victoria MP A. De B. McPhillips.1

Be that as it may the fact remains that the Conservatives now appear to have the best chance of winning representation in the legislaure since Premier Bennett bolted the party and drew a lot of Conservatives with him into the ranks of Social

TIME BUNNING OUT

To succeed, however, the Conservatives must field strong candidates. They, aided by the still-fresh memories of the Conservatives' federal victory, could awing the balance in their favor. But in all this, time is the major factor. Nomination date for candidates is a bare 22 days away, the actual voting only 33 days from today.

There is another point Social Creditors to become a which should be mentioned.

Even if the Conservatives fail to place in the by-elections there is a chance that the party will have a voice in the legislature before the next general election rolls

WON'T HAVE HIM!

For some time now there have been persistent rumors that a well-known Social Credit backbencher will do a 'reverse Bennett" that is he will cross the floor from the Conservative.

This will only take place if the backbencher feels that such a move will lead to his appointment as Conservative leader provincially and also only if the Conservatives appear to be on the up and up

He may find this more difficult than he thinks, how-

Commented one prominent Conservative yesterday: "We won't have him, anyway."
